

Interfaculty Minor Human and Legal Decision-making

Name coordinator:	Martin Strobel - m.strobel@maastrichtuniversity.nl
Full period of this minor:	period 1 and 2
ECTS credits in total of this minor:	25 ECTS
Language of instruction:	English
Teaching methods:	see course descriptions
Assessment methods:	see course descriptions

The study of human decision-making is arguably one of the most complex but also one of the most exiting topics on the scientific agenda. We wonder why people behave as they do. Why do they decide irrationally? Why do we sometimes help strangers and later betray friends? Why do some choose a criminal path? And what happens to our decision making in crises situations? Are we responsible for our decisions? Is there a free will? Or, are we just quite complex but deterministic robots who are hardwired to the behaviour we show? This minor consists of four courses, each covering a different set of questions from above.

Period	Code	Title	ECTS	Faculty
1	PSY3375	Neuropsychology and Law	6	FPN
1	EBC2100	Crisis Management in Organisations	6,5	SBE
2	EBC2103	Economic Psychology	6,5	SBE
2	LAW3021	Law and Neurosciences	6	LAW

Important:

- This Minor has a maximum capacity of 50 students, on a first come, first served basis
- Please note that when registering for this minor via SCR (Special Course Request) in the Studentportal, instead of registering for the 4 separate courses, you will have to register for the overarching course code UMMINORHLDM. After being approved by both the home faculty and the organizing faculty (SBE), you will be registered for the 4 separate courses

The coordinator has started to build up an FAQ from questions he is receiving. It is on his homepage: <https://martinstrobel.net/teaching/FAQ-minor.php>