Fourth Industrial Revolution

- Various technologies that are currently developed, such as bio-, nano-, and material technologies, artificial intelligence, big data, internet of things and 3D printing, are about to converge into new applications and domains.

Intellectual Property Law

- Create a market for technology & ensure information is accurate
 - Otherwise a public good
 - Competitive markets:
 - supply/demand/price/information
 - Functions:
 - Incentivise innovation, return on investment, transactional value, collateral for funding and investment

IP and Sustainable Development

- Global IP policy should address big issues but is increasingly unable to;
- Political international and domestic realities make IP policy making increasingly difficult;
- Transparency and IP awareness is key
 - Training, quality, transparency
 - Positive, rather than negative media attention
 - IP in an open society
 - Patent bargain – disclosure and transfer
 - Copyright – dissemination, access and transformative uses
 - Open innovation and standardization

IP Policy - controversies & out standing issues

- General:

- Global challenges; Innovation, climate change & technology transfer, access to essential pharmaceuticals
- Technical issues; enforcement, piracy and counterfeiting, secondary infringement, criminal sanctions, exhaustion of rights, parallel & transit trade
- IP awareness, training and capacity building

- Patents:

- Scope, quality, morality (EC biotechnology directive), subject matter, (e.g. computer-implemented inventions), Unitary Patent and Unified Patent Court

- Copyright and related rights:

- Limitations and exceptions, term, databases

- Designs:

- Spare parts & after-sales market

- Trade marks:

- Protection beyond confusion

Problem-Based Learning

- Student-centred instructional strategy:
 - students collaboratively solve problems
 - reflect on their experiences
- Students are personally responsible for their academic education
- Teachers take on the role as “facilitators” of learning
 - The instructor is to guide the learning process rather than provide knowledge
 - Feedback and reflection on the learning process and group dynamics are essential components of PBL

Problem-Based Learning Process

Student faces “problem”

- How to address the problem
- How much does student know about the problem
- What information is needed to solve it and where to obtain that information
- Course of action is proposed and taken
- Evaluation of results of the plan of action

Process may start again

PBL – Maastricht University

- The PBL educational model has been at the core of Maastricht University since it was founded
 - In small tutorial groups, the students analyse problems as a stimulus for learning
- The students conduct:
 - discussions
 - exchange knowledge
 - formulate their learning goals as a group

This motivates them to do research themselves

EQE-Training

- Training for candidates preparing for the European Qualifying Examination for European Patent Attorney
 - To qualify as a European patent attorney you need to pass the European qualifying examination (EQE) administered by the European Patent Office (EPO). The EQE takes place once a year in the last week of February; the pass rate is less than 50%. The EQE consists of a Pre-Exam and a Main Exam.
- The training for each of the papers (at present EQE Papers C and D) starts with a 3-day course in Maastricht in the autumn of the year preceding the exam year. Subsequently you will study online.
- The aim of this course is to familiarize the candidates with the methodology for tackling the papers at the exam.

MARIE SKŁODOWSKA-CURIE ACTION

European IP Institutes Network Innovation Society (EIPIN) Innovation Society
 A Horizon 2020 Marie Skłodowska-Curie Action (7% EC)
 EIPIN is a consortium of leading research and training centres in intellectual property, currently presents EIPIN Innovation Society.

EIPIN Innovation Society is a comprehensive project at the forefront of multidisciplinary research, maximizing the role of intellectual property (IP) as a complex additive system in innovation. The ambition is to enhance Europe's capacity to foster innovation based sustainable economic growth globally. The primary research objective of the programme is to provide political leaders and stakeholders reliable information and recommendations in the form of doctoral IP research on how to deal with the adaptive complexities of innovation cycles that secure economic benefits and optimal justice in the innovation society.

IP-Innov Early Stage Researchers (ESRs) are trained to present their research findings on a number of topics of great societal interest, and to guide investors and entrepreneurs through the labyrinth of IP-relevance issues that often hinder innovators in the marketplace. The programme provides for an unprecedented environment for ESRs, leading ultimately to the award of a joint or double doctorate degree.

The involvement of industry associations representing numerous undertakings provides great access to non-academic actors. The EIPIN positions are open to candidates from all domains of expertise, providing a solid foundation for cross-cutting research in the area of innovation policies, while encompassing a traditional separation of disciplines.
