

Master of Health Professions Education (MHPE)

Online distance-based education
and partly face-to-face education

‘Master of Health Professions Education graduates are leading stakeholders in world-wide innovation and research in health professions education’ - Dr. Renée Stalmeijer, MHPE Programme Director

Fast facts

- A strongly international and research-oriented degree programme, with focus on innovative learning environments.
- Two-year part-time programme with a highly flexible and tailor-made approach including elective learning tasks; blended and part-time learning alongside your job. First three weeks of each year are campus-based.
- Date: 24 May, 2027 (application deadline April 1, 2027)
On-campus period: 24 May - 11 June, 2027
- Course fee: €20.500 (in two installments of €10.250).
Applicants from LMIC countries can apply for an MHPE-LMIC Scholarship which supports students by waiving 25% of the fee to be granted based on assessments of quality of the candidate (Year 1) and progress in the program (Year 2).

New revisited MHPE curriculum

Innovation is part of SHE's DNA

The Master of Health Professions Education (MHPE) programme of SHE has an outstanding reputation and has achieved an excellent position in global rankings together with its collaborating SHE Master's programmes in Canada and New York. The new MHPE curriculum revision makes the programme even stronger, more up-to-date to keep up with current challenges and developments in the field of HPE. We train our students to take on leading educational roles in the areas of educational research, designing innovative education or managing complex educational tasks. We have built the MHPE curriculum on what competencies do educational leaders require, now and in the future. Career trajectories in this field of practice require knowledge, not only of the diversity of educational roles, but also of the latest research in this domain.

Unique features of the MHPE

- Elective learning tasks; organising your own competency development and electronic portfolio of self-analysis and self-reflection.
- Approaching authentic educational problems from a strong focus on educational research.
- Internationalisation and inter-professionalisation as the leading principle.
- Guidance from a SHE Coach and inclusion in the SHE community.

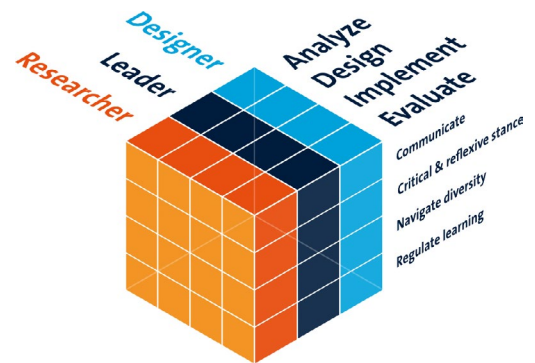

Your MHPE is a personalised learning experience guided by a coach

Elective learning tasks focus on three roles:

- Educational designers
- Educational leaders and
- Researchers in health profession education.

The emphasis is on self-regulated learning, on how to develop your competencies using formative feedback:

- Student-centred learning
- Authentic learning tasks
- Programmatic assessment

Student profile

The master of health professions education attracts an international group of professionals from a variety of educational, professional and cultural backgrounds. The programme is open to students who have acquired a university degree in one of the health professions in their native country (e.g., Health sciences, medicine, nursing, physiotherapy, dentistry, pharmacy, speech therapy), at a level equivalent to that of the dutch degrees in these fields.

Faculty

Experienced SHE staff members facilitate learning tasks according to their specific educational and research expertise. Faculty members coach and support your personal competency development and help you plan your personalised curriculum.