At different governmental levels, there is a lively debate about new ways to better assess the impact of national or EU policies on cross-border territories. DG Regio and the Committee of the Regions are for instance actively searching for better instruments to improve the own territorial impact assessment and to better incorporate cross-border aspects into their routines of regulatory ct assessment. National governments, as for instance the Dutch, are analysing internal scrutiny procedures in order to better understand the consequences of their own policies. ITEM has in recent years developed a bottom-up approach for a cross-border impact assessment for a specific cross-border area and will present the results of its third edition. What are the current developments with respect to all these activities? What are useful tools at what level? How can border-regions actively contribute with own resources and the use of their own regional experts and better influence decisions at national and European level?

Mr. Martin Unfried – senior researcher ITEM

Mr. Eleftherios Stavropoulos - DG Regional and Urban Policy

Mr. Zintis Hermansons – project expert, ESPON EGTC (European Grouping of Territorial Cooperation)

Mr. Johan van der Valk – project manager CBS

2nd Panel: Recognition of Qualifications

The panel and information session on the recognition of qualifications seek to explore different facets of the topic. Recognition plays an important role in the mobility of both students and professionals. However, these parties are confronted with obstacles as recognition procedures may be costly in terms of both money and time. Moreover, some individuals even see some of their diplomas and experience unacknowledged by a refusal of recognition requests. In this panel and information session, leading experts in the area of the recognition of qualifications discuss, from their respective backgrounds, how their organizations seek to facilitate recognition and how to enhance mobility through improved recognition in the future.

Prof. dr. Hildegard Schneider, Professor of European Union Law and Board ITEM

3rd Panel: Cross-border cooperation: governance future of cross-border regions

The interest of cross-border territories have to be articulated at the political level. Joint objectives, plans and programmes have to be coordinated across the border by public and private bodies. There is still a diverse picture of governance structures ranging from long-established and institutionalised Euro-Districts or Euro-Regions to loose and weaker cooperation structures and ad-hoc INTERREG coordination. Is there a certain trend today? Do we see for instance still more EGTC in the making? Does organisation matter and how contribute European Programmes to the institutional setting? How strong are political cross-border governance structures currently? And to what extent are they important for the successful development of cross-border labour markets, infrastructure and good relations of neighbouring regions? The panel will discuss how to strengthen capacities and cooperation structures in order to better cope with the challenges and obstacles described in the Commission's Communication 'Boosting Growth in Border-Regions' (2017).
